

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation. Note that the Republicans saw no danger in this at the time of the vote. POOR DECISION for us and WE KNOW IT!

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and their political slant and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them and I will lobby my congressional delegates to bring this to happen. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
